► Officials say there is a currently a shortage of 911 call takers across the country, including in Victoria. According to data from Victoria police, more than 42,774 calls came into the communications hub in 2015. That number rose to more than 45,103 in 2016...For the hundreds of people who apply to be a 911 call taker, generally, only a few are selected. Training is also extensive. It takes six months with a coach to become a call taker, and another six months to work as a dispatcher...it is a challenging but rewarding position. <https://www.cheknews.ca/inside-victorias-911-call-centre-389888/>.

► The RCMP are also recruiting for Telecommunication (911) Operators for their communication centres in Victoria and Courtenay. Their next information session is on Thursday, December 7, 2017 in Courtenay at 6:00 pm. To register to attend this session go to their website <http://www.rcmp-grc.gc.ca/recruiting-recrutement/rec-eve-cm-mc/bc-eng.htm>

► Final preparations for excavation on the upper lot of Fairwinds Landing will be starting soon, the developer, Seacliff Properties announced... The lot will be developed into the 39-unit condominium building, The Westerly. – From the Nov 21, 2017 Parksville Qualicum Beach News

► Western Canada Marine Response Corporation, an industry-funded organization who clean up oil spills, want to build a hub in Nanaimo to coordinate all oil spill responses on Vancouver Island. “In some places on the coast, we have up to 72 hours to respond. So we're bringing that down drastically to a flat six-hour response for the entire southern shipping lane,” spokesperson Michael Lowry told NanaimoNewsNOW. “So you're looking at a significant reduction in response time and a doubling of capacity we have on hand to respond to a spill.” The push for a better response time was a safety requirement for the proposed TransMountain pipeline expansion from Edmonton to Burnaby. Federally approved but mired in court challenges, if the pipeline is built the oil spill response has to be in place six months before. Lowry said they're working on a tight timeline but hope to start construction in early 2018 and be finished by 2019. Several other bases would also be established across the Island. If built, it's expected to have 15 vessels in Nanaimo and 35 full-time staff to monitor the waters, maintain their ships and train others. “If you have a relatively large incident and you're running 24/7, you're going to need people to back you up,” Lowry said. “We need to train contractors to use our boats and our equipment.” The proposed base would be built on Nanaimo Port Authority's Assembly Wharf on downtown waters at 11 Port Dr. Authority president and CEO Ewan Moir said ‘while construction isn't confirmed, in-depth discussions about the base are ongoing and the Request for Proposal process is under way’. – from <http://nanaimonewsnow.com/article/558863/nanaimo-chosen-main-response-base-oil-spills-salish-sea>. ► The federal government announced that it will spend $150 million over the next two years with a goal of providing young Canadians with the coding and digital skills they need for the well-paying jobs of the future. The program also aims to encourage more young women, Indigenous Canadians and other under-represented groups to pursue careers in science, technology, engineering and math. In addition, it seeks to equip 500 teachers across the country with the training and tools to teach digital and coding skills. Careering Magazine, Fall 2017, page 8 <http://contactpoint.ca/2017/10/career-briefs-15/>
