Job Search Tips

- ▶ Prospective employers often base their assessment of your future performance on your past performance. Describing your accomplishments is vital to marketing yourself to prospective employers. You can add your accomplishments to your resume and cover letter, and speak to them at interviews. As well, reflecting on your accomplishments can help with confidence while job searching, This worksheet, created by Alberta Learning Information Service, has some great questions to help you identify your accomplishments: <http://alis.alberta.ca/pdf/awsol/Identifyingaccomplishments.pdf>
